

Brow Lift

The forehead and brow are amongst the most expressive parts of the face. The position of your brow can signify happiness or stress. Unfortunately as we age, we get wrinkles in the forehead as well as in the lower brow area making us look tired and sometimes angry. Because of this, fixing the forehead and brow area can be amongst the most rewarding parts of the face to address, as it can greatly "freshen up" the face. With many newer endoscopic techniques, this can often be accomplished with minimal incisions and very little down time. Make sure you discuss options to address this very important part of your face with your plastic surgeon.
